But what if an ordinary golfer, an amateur with no professional training, decided to take on the Old Course? That's exactly what Mark Frost did in 2019. A lifelong golfer with a passion for the game, Frost had always dreamed of playing the Old Course, but he knew it would be a daunting task.

Undeterred, Frost began training for his once-in-a-lifetime round. He spent countless hours on the driving range, practicing his swing and honing his skills. He also studied the Old Course layout, memorizing the treacherous bunkers and challenging greens.

On a crisp autumn day in October, Frost finally teed off on the Old Course. He was nervous, but also excited to test his limits. As he made his way around the course, he faced every challenge head-on. He hit towering drives, navigated tricky bunkers, and sank clutch putts.

Despite his inexperience, Frost played with the heart of a champion. He never gave up, even when things got tough. And in the end, he achieved his goal of completing the Old Course in style.

Frost's story is an inspiration to golfers of all levels. It shows that anything is possible if you set your mind to it. And it reminds us that the game of golf is not just about winning or losing, but about the journey itself.
