About the Book

In this powerful and moving memoir, Soil And Soul People Versus Corporate Power, author Miriam Horn recounts her journey from a young idealist to an environmental activist fighting against corporate greed and the destruction of our planet.

After graduating from college, Horn worked as a journalist, covering environmental issues for various publications. She soon realized that the fight for environmental protection was not just about protecting the planet, but also about fighting against the corporate greed that was driving the destruction of the environment.
